

SECURITY DRIVER RESPONSIBILITIES

The security driver employs a broad skillset that combines evasive and defensive driving training, vehicle safety inspection and maintenance, and foot patrol and surveillance. Prior to embarking with the principal on any scheduled trip, the driver will thoroughly inspect the vehicle, assuring its safe operation and clean presentation. The number of vehicles and drivers will vary depending on the level of risk or environment. A low-risk client may just have one vehicle, whereas a high-level individual may require additional cars to form a fleet that will flank the principal's vehicle.

Security driver candidates must hold a clean driving license, no criminal record and demonstrate a history of or a willingness to undertake job-specific training. The security driver will be well presented, have excellent communication and written skills and maintain an air of professionalism at all times. Keeping abreast of innovative wireless technology and systems is a must for the security driver, including continuing job-specific education through training courses and other means.
